DISPOSABLE GOODS FOR HEALTH AND SOCIAL SERVICES

This is the eighth edition of the index to be produced since 1962 and it is compiled from information received in December 1976.

Although many companies known as suppliers of disposable products were invited to provide details of their products only those represented in the index submitted entries in time for inclusion. Every care has been taken in preparation of the text, but no liability can be accepted for any errors or omissions.

Most of the articles are of the 'single-use' type, but in some cases there may be doubt as to whether the items may be regarded as disposable, because they could be cleaned and sterilized for further duty. Much depends on the conditions surrounding their use, and therefore no distinction is drawn between the products in this respect, but some indication as to their potential use may be gained by reference to the materials from which they are made.

How to use the index

Numerical and alphabetical codes are used in order to avoid repetition of names, addresses and other data, and while these are acknowledged to be inconvenient in some respects, they do provide a wide source of reference in compact form.

The index is in three sections and from these it is possible to trace the sources of supply of particular products, the address and status of the company concerned and the materials from which the articles are made. Trade names are listed together with the identity and status of the companies from whom the products are obtainable.

Section A lists the products in alphabetical order. There is no cross index, and each item appears once only, under its common noun, such as bottle, box, tube etc followed by its descriptive term. The main part of the product list refers to single items only, and at the end there is a sub-section listing collective items, such as kits, packs and sets used for various procedures.

Against each product are coded references, which identify the suppliers, their status and the materials from which the articles are made.

Each reference code consists of two or three parts:

- 1 A number, by which the company's identity, address and telephone number can be found in Section B.
- 2 A capital letter (M or P) which signifies whether the company manufactures the article (M) or imports it (P). Codes which do not include either of the above capital letters signify that the company is a supplier or stockist.
- 3 Lower case letters, which indicate the materials from which the articles are made, in accordance with the following key:

a	Paper	e	Glass	i	Non-wovens
b	Plastics	f	Wood	j	Pulpware
c	Aluminium	g	Woven Textiles	v	Various
d	Rubber	h	Metals (other than aluminium)	x	Not specified

Section B lists the names and addresses of the companies in order of their code numbers.

Section C lists the trade names associated with disposable products and gives the code numbers of the companies from whom the products are available. Where capital letters (M or P) are included these signify that the companies concerned are manufacturers or importers, in accordance with coding arrangements for Section A(2)

Suggestions for additions or amendments to the list of products or suppliers will be welcome for inclusion in future editions.
