LONDON, E.C.4

January, 1935

THERE is a growing demand for suitable hospital provision for those who, owing to modern developments in medicine and surgery, require hospital treatment with all its advantages, and who are able to pay the cost of their maintenance and also perhaps to pay something for medical attendance.

Until a generation or two ago the only function of a hospital was to provide treatment, mostly of a very simple kind, for the necessitous poor who could not afford treatment in their own homes.

During the last 60 or 70 years, however, the progress of medical science and surgery has been so great, and the cost of treatment has increased to such an extent, that the position has entirely changed.

It is now usual for patients in the ordinary wards of the hospitals to be asked to pay what they can towards the cost. Such voluntary contributions rarely exceed £2 2s., and in the majority of cases are much smaller, while patients who are really unable to make any payment are still admitted free, and receive the same care and treatment as those who contribute to the cost. In the larger hospitals the average cost of treatment in the ordinary wards is now about £4 a week.

But it is for those who do not wish to compete for admission to the ordinary wards, and who are willing to pay more in order to secure more privacy, and various other advantages, that special accommodation is now needed.

Realising this, many of the London Voluntary Hospitals have now made special provision for such patients, in the form either of single rooms, of small wards for two or four persons, or of cubicles, the charges varying according to the type of accommodation provided. Particulars are given in the appended table.

Medical and surgical fees are not as a rule included in the weekly charge, but it is usually contemplated that such fees, like the hospital charges, will be on a modified scale, and lower than those charged to patients in a nursing home. The amount of the fee is usually arranged between patient and consultant, but the family doctor will be able to ascertain what is the proper course. There are often also additional charges for certain extras, such as special nursing, if required. Ordinary nursing is included in the hospital charge.

These "Pay Beds," as they are usually called, have increased from 590, in 1920, to 1,871 included in the present edition of this pamphlet, and several hospitals have schemes in progress which should lead to a further considerable addition to the number available.

In May, 1927, H.R.H. The Prince of Wales, as President of King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, appointed a special committee, known as the "Pay Beds Committee," to inquire and report upon the question. The Committee, who issued their report in July, 1928, expressed the following opinions :—

" We consider that the existing provision of 1,055 pay beds has proved to be a very valuable addition to the Voluntary Hospital service of London ; that a material extension of this provision is urgently required to meet the existing demand ; and that the organisation of a mutual insurance scheme to assist persons of moderate means to meet the cost of maintenance and medical fees is strongly to be recommended."

" We believe that an extension of the pay bed system at the Voluntary Hospitals, with due safeguards for the maintenance and extension of the ordinary beds, would be of advantage to the patients of all classes, to the individual hospitals, and to the Voluntary Hospital system as a whole."

A contributory scheme, known as " The Hospital Saving Association," was instituted, in 1924, with the aid of the King's Fund, to enable the ordinary hospital patient to make provision in advance by means of a weekly contribution of 3d. a week, out of which the Association makes payments to the hospital in respect of each member receiving treatment. This scheme is confined to persons with incomes not exceeding £4 for a single man or woman, £5 for a married man without children under sixteen, and £6 for a married man with children under sixteen.

For persons whose incomes exceed these limits and who wish to make provision towards the charges in the pay wards of a hospital, an insurance scheme has been established on somewhat similar lines, under the title of "The British Provident Association." Full particulars of this scheme can be obtained from the Secretary at 30, Lancaster Gate, W.2.

A complete list of "pay beds" now available in the London Voluntary Hospitals on the books of the King's Fund is appended for the information of those who may wish to make use of them. Further particulars may be obtained from the Secretary of the particular Hospital at the address given in the list. Actual application for admission is, in most cases, made through the patient's own doctor.

LIST of PAY BEDS AT VOLUNTARY HOSPITALS IN LONDON

MAKING RETURNS TO THE KING'S FUND

January, 1935

Further particulars relating to Pay Beds, including procedure as regards medical attendance and medical fees, are summarised in the Report of the Pay Beds Committee of King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, published in July, 1928, by Geo. Barber & Son Ltd., 23, Fumival Street, E.C.4, Part I, price 1s., post free 1s. 5d. For detailed information regarding a particular hospital application should be made to the Secretary of the Hospital.

The grouping of the Hospitals is based on the method adopted in the King's Fund Statistical Summary on cost of working. Hospitals for members of the middle and professional classes are grouped with the Hospitals whose pay bed departments they most resemble.

NOTE.

The figures in the column "Normal weekly charge" do not include any medical or surgical fees that may also be payable. In nearly every case one or more of the following specific services, if required, are charged for as extras, sometimes as an addition to the hospital charge, sometimes as part of the medical fee, viz. : Anæsthetist ; Exceptionally expensive drugs and/or dressings ; Electrical treatment ; Light treatment ; Massage ; Extra nurses Operating theatre ; Pathological examinations ; Radium ; X-ray.

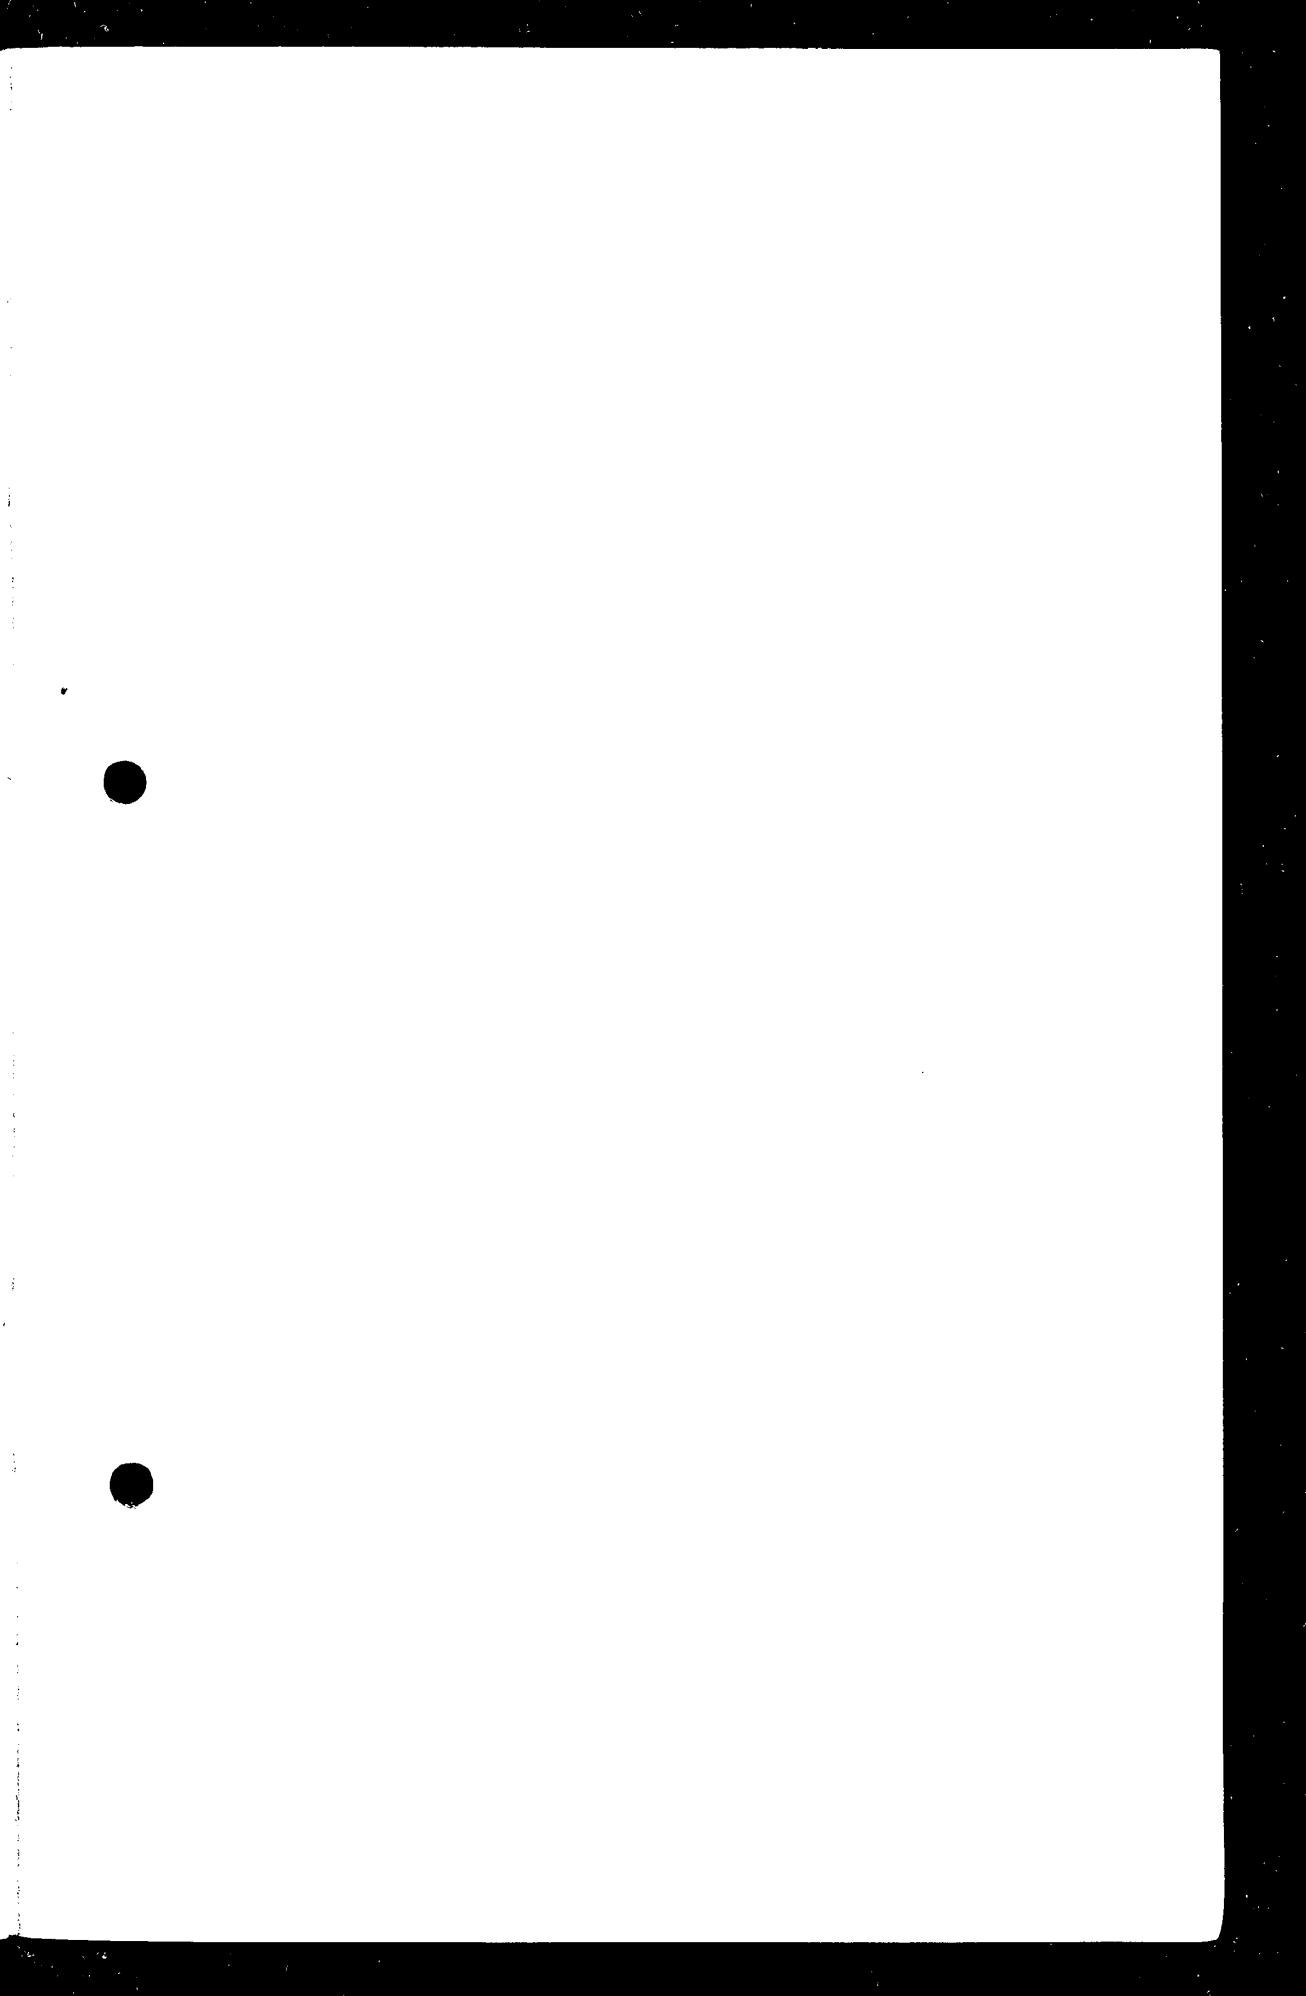

In the column "Description," m. = male ; f. = female ; ch. = children.

The Voluntary Hospital System

is already becoming largely a co-operative effort in which all classes of the community, including the Hospital patients themselves, combine, as their means permit, to provide Hospital services which produce benefits for all classes: directly for the less wealthy, because without the Hospitals the necessary medical treatment cannot be brought within their means, and indirectly for the more wealthy, because without the Hospitals the necessary medical treatment would not exist.
